9. Margaret A. Davidson, daughter of Issac Davidson, was born in 1817 in South Carolina, United States. She died in 1888 in Wolf Bayou, Arkansas.

Notes for John Logan:

John Logan was one of the early settlers in Coosa County Alabama when the county was formed in 1832. That county as formed from the Creek Indian Cession and Reverend George Brewers History of Coosa County states that John and Alexander Logan, brothers, lived among the Indians, probably on Hatchett Creek above Rockford, before the county was formed. Rockford is the county seat of Coosa County and is located 65 miles south east of Birmingham, AL. John Logan was born in Tennessee, but at this time, we do not know where his family lived in Tennessee or when they moved to AL. From our genealogical research to date, we believe that James E. M. Logan was the father of John and Alexander because John was administrator of his estate at the time of his death in September 1839. James E. M. Logan was sheriff of Coosa County from 1837 to the time of his death, September 1839. John Logan married Margaret Davidson, July 27, 1841 at Rockford, AL. She was the daughter of Isaac Davidson and was born in SC. To their union was born Caroline Jane, James M., John Robert, Issac D., George W., Napoleon B. and Henry C. Logan. They lived in Nixburg and he was listed in the 1850 US Census as being a grocer. He is also mentioned in Rev. Brewers History as being one of the early residents of Nixburg, AL. This small town still exists today a few miles southeast of Rockford. He died between March of 1854 and March of 1855, at the age of 48 years. This date of his death was established from court and tax records of Coosa County. After John Logan's death, Margaret moved near her father, Issac Davidson, at Mt Olive, with her young family and reared her sons as farmers. James, John Robert and Isaac Logan served with the Confederacy during the Civil War. About 1870 Isaac and George Logan came to AR. They did not appear in either the US Census of AR or AL, indicating that they were travelling between AL and AR at the time of that census. Margaret Logan and all the other members of her family appeared in the US Census of AL in 1870. She came to AR between the years of 1871-73 with all the members of her family except her son John Robert, who remained in AL and reared his family there. She and her family settled in Stone County, near the Cleburne County line. Grandmother Margaret Logan was one of those hardy pioneer women that reared her family in a hard situation and in very difficult times in the history of our country. She is buried in the Macedonia Cemetery, north of Drasco, AR, a long, long distance from her native SC. This is a brief history of our Logan family before they came to AR and became some of the early settlers of this area. We are continuing our genealogical research for the ancestors of John Logan and Margaret Davidson and at this time know that they were born in SC. Hopefully, if we have this reunion next year, we can give you more information and history of this Logan family. Written for the Logan Family Reunion (about 1970) by Edith Chloe Logan-Yates

Notes for Sir John Restalrig Logan:

Lochend Castle; the former site of Restalrig Castle This drawing taken from Grant's Old and New Edinburgh shows the site where the ancient Restalrig Castle stood. The original structure has been described as a crenelated Pele tower and was mostly destroyed around 1600-1603, apparently by William Little, then Provost of Edinburgh. The ?th Laird of Restalrig was recorded as seeking permission to rebuild/repair the structure. It is unclear how much if any was repaired before the Logan family "sold" Restalrig to James, Lord Balmerino (the Logans did not receive the 18,000 marks payment, but the lands were not returned .) Restalrig, a decayed village in South Leith parish, Edinburghshire, in the northern vicinity of Jock's Lodge, and north-eastern vicinity of St Margaret's railway depot, 2 miles E by N of the General Post Office, Edinburgh. In pre-Reformation days, Restalrig was the capital of the parish in which it stands, and the site of the parish church. According to tradition, St Triduana, a noble virgin of Achaia, who came to Scotland in the 8th century in company with St Rule, died at Restalrig; and down to Sir David Lyndsay's time many pilgrims, afflicted with eye-diseases, resorted hither to Sanct Tredwall's shrine. At the death of William the Lyon (1214), the district of Restalrig- or, as it was anciently called, Lestalric- was possessed by the De Lestalric family. In 1291 Adam of St Edmund's, parson of Lestalric, obtained a writ to the sheriff of Edinburgh to deliver him his lands and rights; and, in 1296, in the ancient church here, he swore fealty to Edward I. During the reign of Robert Bruce, or the early part of the 14th century, the barony passed by marriage into the possession of the Logans, with whom it continued till they incurred forfeiture for participation in the Gowrie Conspiracy. In 1435 the patronage of the church was confirmed to Thomas Logan, by William, Bishop of St Andrews. A collegiate establishment, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, the Virgin, and St Margaret, was established at Restalrig by James III. in 1487, enlarged by James IV. in 1512, and completed by James V. in 1515, the foundation comprising a dean, 9 prebendaries, 3 chaplains, and 2 singing boys. The parsonage, however, remained entire till the Reformation. In 1560 the first General Assembly ordained that the church, 'as a monument of idolatrie, be raysit, and utterlie casten downe and destroyed;' and that the parishioners should in future adopt as their parish church, St Mary's chapel in Leith. In 1609 the legal rights of the church and parish of Restalrig, with all their revenues and pertinents, were formerly alienated from them by parliament, and conferred upon that chapel, then legally declared to be the parish church of South Leith. Robert Logan of Restalrig, the Gowrie conspirator, who died a bankrupt in 1606, had sold in 1596 his estate of Nether Gogar to Andrew Logan of Coalfield, in 1602 his lands of Fast Castle to Archibald Douglas, and in 1604 his barony of Restalrig to Lord Balmerino. The Lords Balmerino held the lands of Restalrig till their forfeiture in 1746; and during the whole period of their possession appropriated the vaults of the forsaken and dilapidated church as the burying-place of themselves and their kinsfolk. Lady Balmerino, the wife of Arthur, the sixth and attainted Lord. resided in the village during the years of her widowhood, and died there in 1765. The Earls of Moray, who purchased the forfeited lands, now claim as their mausoleum an octagonal chapter-house to the S of the church, whose groined roof springs from a single central pillar, and which is said to have been built about 1435 by Sir Robert Logan. The Episcopalians have always, from the Revolution downward, had a strong attachment to Restalrig. They were for years prohibited from performing their funeral service in any of the city or suburban burying-grounds; so they adopted Restalrigs their cemetery, and here in 1720 interred the body of Alexander Rose, the last legal or more than titular bishop of Edinburgh. Here, too, is the grave of Lord Brougham's father, as well as of many a gallant soldier. The Second Pointed, three-bayed choir consisted of little more than the E wall and part of the side walls in 1836, when it was restored from designs by Mr W. Burn, and made a chapel of ease or mission chapel, subordinate to South Leith church. Under the verge of St Margaret's depot was a famous spring, called St Margaret's Well; and some fine old Gothic stone-work over this was removed in 1860 to a runnel at the N foot of Salisbury Craigs. Restalrig House, to the N of the village, is a plain substantial mansion, in a well-wooded park of 15 acres. It was built in 181
